

Save The Date

The SEEM Collaborative, in partnership with The Library of Congress: Teaching with Primary Sources Program, is offering the following free teacher workshops this fall.

Title and Audience	Description	Date and Location
Teaching LGBTQ History Using Primary Sources Audience: Grade K-12 Facilitator: Mike Kozuch, Director, Global Communities Program, Newton South	Participants will work with primary sources, including Library of Congress resources, to gain both content knowledge and specific resources to teach topics surrounding LGBTQ history. The focus will be incorporating GLBT issues into current World and US history classes, from Early Japan through the Russian Revolution and the Colonial Period to the Cold War. Teacher teams will develop primary source-based lessons.	Dates: November 19th & December 3rd 3pm-5pm* Location: Melrose Middle School, MVMMS – 3rd Floor Library 6 PDPs
Teaching Social Studies using Maps as Primary Sources Audience: Grade K-12 Facilitator: Michelle LeBlanc, Director of Education, Norman B. Leventhal Map Center	Participants will work with primary sources, including Library of Congress and Leventhal Map Center resources, to gain content knowledge and specific sources to use on grade-specific topics surrounding the use of maps as a primary source. Teacher teams will develop primary source-based lessons. Course will include completion of a brief online Library of Congress module.	Dates: December 3rd & 10th 3pm-5pm Location: Melrose Middle School, MVMMS – 3rd Floor Project Room 6 PDPs

*Start time subject to change slightly based on the school day of the registrants.

Registration: Complete online registration at:

<http://tinyurl.com/SEEMFallTPSPD>

Questions: Contact Bryan Corrigan, Director of Social Studies, 6-12, Melrose

bcorrigan@melroseschools.com

Lynnfield	Stoneham
Melrose	Wakefield
North Reading	Wilmington
Reading	Winchester
Saugus	Woburn